ABOUT THE BOOK

Marianne's days are filled with schedules, structure and soccer. There's just one problem: Marianne is a maker. She needs every minute of her weekends to scheme and dream, to draw and design, to build and rebuild! This is a story of how a creator with a crackerjack imagination finds a not-so-great way to skip soccer practice and create her masterpiece. But will her dad understand? Told in delightful rhyme that bounces across George Sweetland's gorgeous collage-style illustrations (chock-full of hidden gems), Marianne the Maker is sure to kindle the creative spark that lives inside all of us.

AUTHOR CLAIRE CORRIGAN LICHTY

Claire Corrigan Lichty Claire is in her last year at the University of Virginia where she is an Echols scholar and probably the school's only double major in Computers Science and Drama. Making is her life – computer programs, stand-up routines, screenplays, code, songs, algorithms, pizzas... During her last semester, she will be interning at a machine learning company as well as a Hollywood production studio.

ILLUSTRATOR GEORGE SWEETLAND

George Sweetland is an illustrator, an elementary school teacher, a boy dad twice over and a world-class maker. "I want illustrations that are strategically connected with the text to create impactful humor and, most importantly, to build a love for reading," says George.
